“Thinking Outside the Bottle: A Case for Intervention”

Friday, November 17, 2017

The Rhode Island Shriner’s – Imperial Room

One Rhodes Place, Cranston, Rhode Island

8:30 am - 12:00 pm

Description: This workshop will address the concept and principles of Intervention, the selection and preparation of participants and will include lecture and demonstration of an Intervention.

Attendees will be able to:

- describe the dual purpose of this Intervention model.
- describe four stages of Intervention preparation.
- describe three strategies when working directly with addicts.

Frances Hall, LICSW has more than 35 year in social work practice. She has "done it all" in terms of the depth and breadth of her practice. Her many professional roles have included clinician, supervisor, administrator, trainer, mentor and volunteer. Her special interest for decades has been in addictions. In 1987, she completed a yearlong certificate program at the Boston University Alcohol and Drug Institute. She then became a trainer and frequent presenter at many workshops and seminars. A major interest has been in performing Interventions with family and friends of addicted people. Ms. Hall has since developed her own method and style, based on the original Johnson Model, in working with families and friends of addicts. Ms. Hall has an infectious and generous spirit, deep personal commitment, enthusiasm and intense desire to help addicted people and their families and to train other professionals on Intervention.
