“Coming into the Light: Breaking the Stigma of Substance Use Disorders”

Friday, April 13, 2018
8:30am - 12:00pm

The Rhode Island Shriner’s
One Rhodes Place, Cranston, Rhode Island

Description: Stigma is a major barrier preventing millions of people who are struggling with substance use from entering treatment today. This presentation is designed to help professionals break that stigma that creates an unnecessary barrier to treatment by understanding recovery oriented language and strategies that can be integrated into practice immediately.

Participants will:

- be able to identify use strengths based language to reduce stigma associated with substance use disorders.
- be able to conceptualize the factors that influence stigma associated with substance use disorders and their consequences.
- be able to discuss targets and interventions aimed at addressing stigma associated with substance use.

Chris Dorval MSW, LCSW LCDP, LCDCS, ICADC is a therapist in private practice, a Project Coordinator for Rhode Island College SBIRT Training and Resource Center, a Treatment Consultant for Delphi Behavioral Health Group, as well as, a clinical consultant specializing in addiction, trauma, and men’s health. Chris has worked as the Director of Clinical Outreach and Development for an international training and consulting agency, as well as, having worked as a clinician and clinical supervisor in various levels of care in addiction treatment for over six years. Chris has extensive training in trauma informed care, treating co-occurring trauma and addiction, and is committed to helping others in their own personal journeys in recovery. A Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW), Licensed Chemical Dependency Professional (LCDP), and a Licensed Chemical Dependency Clinical Supervisor (LCDCS), Chris graduated from Rhode Island College with a Bachelor’s degree in Psychology and a Master’s degree in Clinical Social Work (MSW). As a person in long-term recovery himself, Chris is passionate about working with those affected by addiction and trauma and has dedicated his practice to this focus. As a father, husband, son, and friend, Chris believes in developing healthy family and interpersonal relationships and addressing the underlying issues driving a person’s symptoms essential to sustained recovery.
